

×

Aa www.washingtonpost.com

‘There isn’t really anything magical about it’: Millennials are avoiding sex

Sam Wei, a 26-year-old financial analyst in Chicago, has not had sex since her last relationship ended 18 months ago. She makes out with guys sometimes, and she likes to cuddle.

“To me, there’s more intimacy with having someone there next to you that you can cuddle with without having to have sex,” she said. “I don’t want to do anything that would hurt a relationship and be something that we can’t come back from.”

